BIG PICNIC AT TRACTION PARK

Flint Glass Workers' Union Delegates and Friends Have Fine Outing.

Speaking by labor leaders, dancing, eating and outdoor sports featured the picnic of the American Flint Glass Workers Union held at Traction Park, near Monongah yesterday afternoon as a part of the program of the convention of the glass workers which opened here on Monday and which will run for two weeks or more. The speakers of the occasion were J. R. Diggs, secretary of the Monongahela Valley Trades Union, and W. A. Conaway, P. Clark, president of the American Flint Glass Workers Union, and Matthew Woll of Chicago, eighth vice president of the American Federation of Labor. The program was read by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, expressing his regret that he would be unable to attend any of the sessions of the convention.

S. J. Montgomery, former labor commissioner of West Virginia, was booked for an address at the picnic yesterday, but at the last minute he found that it would be impossible to leave Chicago. He telegraphed a message received by the glassworkers yesterday.

J. R. Diggs opened the speaking program by reading the Declaration of Independence. He then introduced Mr. Clark. The president of the Flint Glass Workers' Union, his address made an appeal for a more complete organization of labor.

Following the address by President Clark, Matthew Woll was introduced. He made the declaration that labor was not getting the inalienable rights of life, liberty and pursuit of happiness as set forth in the Declaration of Independence. He declared that the "trials and tribulations through which we are now passing are leading to the dawn of a better day."

Following the speaking program, which started before 1 o'clock and lasted until about 3 o'clock, the crowd went to the baseball diamond where a good game was staged.

Picnic lunches were served at various places on the grounds. Many brought baskets of food and had lunch and supper at the park. Dancing was enjoyed during the afternoon and evening, while the Moose band arrived from Fairmont at 3:30 and put on a splendid evening.

At Huntington, W. Va., the Chesapeake & Ohio shophmen were reported "all out."

The Omaha Neb. local shophmen reported that practically all shophmen were out on the Union Pacific lines Union Pacific officials said they were hiring new men rapidly.

More detailed reports are expected by Mr. Jewell with in the next day or two.

"Telephone Picketing" Reported. TOPEKA, July 5.—A new angle in strike picketing, "telephone picketing," has come to Governor Allen in several reports that shophmen who had not gone out or members of their families had been called over the telephone, followed by graumant, persuasion and regret that something "unpleasant was bound to happen if scabbing" did not cease, the governor said today.

Double Force of Pickets NEW YORK, July 5.—Leaders of the striking shop crafts unions placed double forces of pickets around the railroad shops and yards today, which is considered to be the first real test of the strength of the shophmen's strike against the wage decisions of the Railroad Labor Board. There has been a Sunday and holiday stoppage of work since the strike was called.

Union men reiterated their claim of having complete support of their shop craftsmen in the strike, while railroad officials said today would see the return of most of the workers to their shops.

GLASS WORKERS URGED BY CLARK TO REMAIN COOL

Sixteen Committees of Conventions Here to Make Reports Friday.

"Just be cool and wait developments. The employers have more at stake than the workers." This was the message given to the delegates by President William P. Clark, in his report at the second session of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union convention here.

"I am not going to support unreasonable demands put forth by the workers to the detriment of the industry, nor can any act of coercion on the part of the employers cause me to give approval to any unreasonable demands that they may present."

Your president has selected for himself a position in the middle of the road, so to speak. I am not going to support with, and will not countenance the 'dog in the manger' attitude of some employers or their representatives, neither will I support the ideas of men on our own executive board who are assuming a 'rule or ruin' attitude, let the future bring to me what it will."

President Clark reviewed the unusual conditions that have confronted the workers and representatives of the industry for the past eight years. He told of the unrest during the four years of the great war, and declared that now the cry for adjustment and reconstruction is causing unusual conditions which must be faced by the workers themselves.

"Never in the history of the union were we confronted with a situation over which hung so many clouds as now seem to hover about us. Darkness and gloom seem to appear on every hand. To add to this, caustic criticism is being heaped on us because we did not concede to every unreasonable demand for wage reductions asked for by the employers. People whose intellect is nothing short of perfect, and whose knowledge of our industry, wages and conditions are concerned, undertake to criticize us for what they take pleasure in terming the 'stubbornness of the glass workers' while others who have the 'knowledge' but lack the desire as well as the courage to use it, take pleasure in quoting this unjust article and add insult to injury, while others who have more pride than our scorn."

President Clark continued by giving the reports of the various conferences held with the employers and told of the unsettled situation of the industry. In speaking of the future, Mr. Clark said: "Practically all our agreements expire within the next two weeks and very few have been renewed. I have no idea what the future will do. They may close their plants, or they may seek additional conferences and continue to operate pending a settlement."

Mr. Clark concluded his report by reading some news items that appeared in the New York Commercial, a publication devoted to financial affairs. The article was reprinted in the daily papers at Fairmont. It said that the workers were said to have been unjustly criticized for the high wages received by them during the war.

The next important session of the convention will be held on Friday, when the reports of the various committees will be read before the entire body.

than the cases where error had been committed.

Following his remarks, Harry Cook, C. J. Shipman and Joseph Gillogly, other national officials, took the floor and made short talks. Dr. Howard bespoke for the American Legion a liberal patronage of its efforts in the Ravine Park entertainment which takes place the first three days of next week.

Virginia Hungerford had charge of the musical program during the luncheon to the keen enjoyment of the members of the club, who took part in a number of songs.

SMALL NUMBER BEFORE MAYOR CONAWAY TODAY

Seven young men were arrested by the city officers last night charged with throwing firecrackers off the South Side bridge into the crowd at Ravine Park. Mayor Conaway was expected to see the city patrolmen guarding the bridge in an effort to keep persons from throwing firecrackers. Outside of this, the officers received few complaints of annoyance from the use of fireworks.

The men arrested were brought before Mayor W. W. Conaway in police court today and after confessing to the charges were given a severe lecture by Mayor Conaway. Each of the young men was fined $5 and cost. Those who paid fines were Robert Mays, Alton Dent, Horace Falconer, Lester Holt, R. H. Hayhurst and John Eakle.

The number of drunks arrested today was small in comparison to other holidays. During the day the officers were called upon to complain of citizens, to arrest Ray Layman, charged with being drunk and disorderly. Layman confessed to the charges in police court today and was fined $15.

Walter Wolverton was also arrested for an excessive celebration of the Fourth and faced Mayor Conaway in police court this morning, charged with being drunk and disorderly. He paid a fine of $10 and cost.

LOCUST AVENUE PEOPLE CAN'T IDENTIFY BOYS

"I believe there is a pretty good set of boys out Locust avenue," said Mayor W. W. Conaway in police court this morning, when he examined witness after witness in an effort to find some one who could identify six Locust avenue youths who had been causing so much trouble in that vicinity.

"I don't want to hear any more complaints from you Locust avenue people," was the statement made by Mayor Conaway after he had made every possible effort to get some of the Locust avenue people who had made the complaints to make some specific statement as to just which of the boys had been causing all the trouble.

Mayor Conaway was surprised that the many men who were at first examined in the case were unable to identify the boys who lived along their street. After some six or eight prominent male residents of Locust avenue had failed to identify the boys, several Locust avenue women were summoned to court, and they, too, were unable to give any evidence against the boys who had been arrested for the disturbances.

The boys ranged from 13 to 22 years old and were arrested by the city officers upon complaint of Locust avenue residents.

WOMAN'S CLUB CENSORSHIP

Criticism and comment on the situation of the local theaters appears in this column are for the benefit of the Woman's Club of Fairmont. The West Virginian does not assume any responsibility for the opinions expressed. The Editor.

The Dixie. A whimsical little tale, with a strange mix of humor, pathos and tragedy is Molly "O," appearing at the Dixie today, with Mabel Normand in the title role.

It is the story of a poor Irish girl who yearns for a real romance, and dreams that some day she will meet a handsome young Prince Charming who will take her away from the life into which fate has placed her.

After a series of situations, some of which are humorous and others that are pathetic, she finally finds the object of her dreams who proves to be a man entirely out of her station, but this seems to make no difference to anyone but her father. He, however, proceeds to use measures to break up the friendship, but only succeeds in adding fuel to the flame.

While the plot is not particularly strong and quite a trifle lead and there are episodes that are very thrilling.

The Princess. Eugene O'Brien today is starring in a picture in which there is much of humor and a pretty romance.

He appears as a young chap, who thinks he has fallen heir to a fortune, but instead he finds that it is he is to have riches he must get it somehow from the land which he has inherited.

So he sets about, to make the most of his stock in trade, and his efforts combine to make a very interesting and amusing narrative.

The Nelson. "The Witches' Hour" showing at the Nelson today is a strange weird story of three generations, who are influenced by a supernatural fear of a jewel commonly known as a cat's-eye.

The third generation, represented by a young man known as Clay Whipple, commits a murder while under the influence of a cat's-eye set in a certain stick-pin and is found guilty and sentenced to death. His mother, at last, sort goes to her old home to secure evidence that she hopes will have some bearing upon the case and succeeds in finding it.

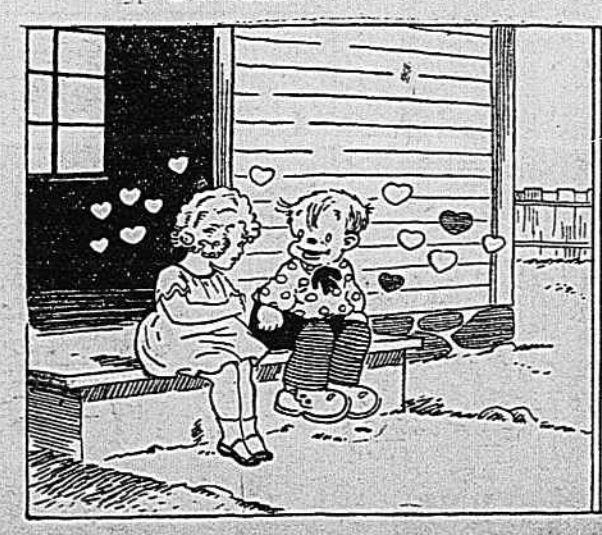

The story is hard to follow, but may be said to present something different from the usual murder and trial film.

Comedy and news completes the program.
